RESISTANCE & RESILIENCE:

Writing Jim Crow

A writing workshop with instructor Lisa Hartz, Executive Director of the Seven Cities Writers Project

FALL 2018

How do you, your family, and your community cope with the daily pressures and challenges posed by institutionalized racism, both current and historical? In this inspiring, supportive creative writing workshop we will draw out and collect your stories. You will write in response to prompts and selected readings, and receive helpful advice to keep you going. With your permission opportunities for publication online or in print will be explored.

An eight-week course. No fee. Meeting Fridays beginning October 19, 2018, 10am to noon.

Meets: 10/19, 10/26, 11/2, 11/9, 11/16, 11/30, 12/14, 12/21.

At the Portsmouth Colored Community Library Museum,
904 Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, 23704

Preregistration is required; space is limited! Please call 757-393-8591. Registration deadline is October 12, 2018.

Sponsored by Portsmouth Museums, The Virginia Commission for the Arts, The National Endowment for the Arts, and by Seven Cities Writers Project, a non-profit organization that brings writing workshops to underserved communities -- because we believe in the healing power of creative expression and that all voices have a right to be heard.
